BYU STUDENT VICTIM OF KIDNAP-SHOOTING

A story-book tale of Communist intrigue was told this week to Provo Police by a Brigham Young University student.

Einar Erickson, 23, widely known at BYU for his recent archaeological expeditions, was kidnapped Friday night by an "oriental stranger," forced at gun-point to drive up Spanish Fork canyon, and was shot three times by the unknown gunman.

Mr. Erickson, recovering at his home, 833 N. 150 East, said he may have been assailed because "I was suspected of knowing things dangerous for me to know." He related an experience he had while in Japan in which he discovered some hidden caves during an archaeological expedition. He was chased away from the caves by men who he assumed to be subversives, probably Communists. He thinks that was related to the Friday assault in Provo.

Mr. Erickson's wounds are not serious. He was shot by a .22 calibre pistol and was only grazed by two of the bullets. The third one entered his abdomen. The Utah Valley hospital released the Ruth, Nevada student Sunday.

Police today were trying to learn something of Mr. Erickson's experiences in Japan from U. S. Army authorities. The FBI office in Salt Lake said they had no plans for investigating the case at present.

Mr. Erickson is a former LDS missionary, and was a member of BYU's archaeological expeditions to Southern Utah, made last year for the U. S. Department of Interior.

Banyan Queen Petitions Due Tomorrow

Girls desiring to run for Banyan Queen must submit their names to the Banyan office by 3 p.m. tomorrow. All contestants will appear before committee members at 5 p.m. Friday.

Candidates should submit a 5 x 7 photo at this time.

PROVO THEATER SETS BYU VARSITY SHOWS

A talent-packed Brigham Young University varsity show will open a ten-week engagement at Provo's Paramount Theater Monday, January 28.

The show—named "Varsity Frolics"—is being written, produced, directed, and staged by Dick Moody, Mesa, Arizona cheerleader. Music will be written by Crawford Gates, while Rolfe Peterson has accepted the job of master of ceremonies. Both are Y faculty members.

Features Y Talent

The weekly one-half hour production will feature a variety of talent uncovered by the recent Student Program Bureau survey, conducted by Jon Katzenbach, bureau head. The survey was widely advertised around the campus and met with a big response.

Beginning at 9:15 p.m., the programs will be a great advertising boon for BYU in this area. Each week, along with a program of popular talent, the traditional award will be presented by Fischer-Smith Co. to the most outstanding basketball player of the week. The progress of the school will be given each week as a feature of the show.

Contracts Signed

Contracts have been signed for a ten-week run, but Mr. Moody indicated that the show will continue longer if the series is successful. Plans also include an appearance of some BYU dignitary on each show.

Radio station KOVO will broadcast the "Varsity Frolics," and several Provo commercial institutions will contribute to its effort.

AS YOU WERE SAYING—Keith Orme tries to explain his pantless condition to Prof. Wilford Smith and Alice Brady while Joyce Sommerlade watches the proceedings.

Snow Carnival Assembly Set

Based on the story of "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," Thursday's assembly will feature the coronation of Miss Snow White, queen of the Snow Carnival, accompanied by her two attendants and seven storybook guardians.

A trophy cup will be presented to the winners of the snow sculpturing contest. Judging of the sculpturing will be at 9:30 a.m. Thursday. Campus groups are making snow statues on the lawn of the Joseph Smith bldg. They may be erected any time prior to the judging.

Co-chairmen of the assembly committee are Joanne Smith, Portland, Ore., and Karen Butters, Kamas.

Other committees are: costumes, Gloria Russell, Kamas, and Claudette Ericksen, Danbery, Cann.; music, Ray Pierotti, Bountiful; stage management, Lloyd McAfferty, Olympia, Wash.

Two fellowships of $2000 each are available in the Graduate School of Business, Columbia University, by the Seaboard and Western Airline, international air freight carrier, announced Philip Young, dean of Columbia's Graduated School of Business.

The fellowship holders will study and do research of international market and air freight across the North Atlantic commencing with the 1952-53 academic year.

"The fellowships have the general objective of creating highways of the air which will bring closer to realization the "one world" concept of peace, so essential to the survival of civilization in an atomic age," states Raymond A. Norden, president of Seaboard and Western Co.

Recipients of the fellowships must be eligible and acceptable for admission to Columbia's Graduate School of Business, or be currently enrolled in it. A joint committee of the school and Seaboard and Western Airlines will make the final selection of the fellows. The fellowships will be awarded annually for an initial period of three years.

Some Misdirected Energy

No one doubts that good sportsmanship has its place, especially at a church-endowed college, but any lack of it at Brigham Young University is the result of misdirected energy on the part of the very people who attempt to bring it about.

In an effort to prevent any displays of poor sportsmanship, student and administrative officials got together and decided that someone should make a profound utterance before each game, extolling the virtues of good sportmanship.

In this they did err!

In the first place, a basketball game is no place for a sermon In the second place, the speakers chosen have no particular attraction to the crowd. In the third place, the mesages have no apparent audience and are considered an unnecessary preliminary before the "fireworks." In the fourth place, time and experience have proved the method to be wholly inadequate

Method of Action

At BYU the problem is dealt with in this manner: the preliminary game ends; 7,000 excited followers of what they consider one of the nation's greatest cage powers sit breathlessly talking about the "big" game, cheerleaders boil over with enthusiasm; the band strikes up a spirited march; the teams go off the floor for final instructions, and all is in readiness for the spectacle. Then the public address system calls for attention A voice introduces an austere personality, and he addresses this bedlam of expectancy with words similar to this:

"Good sportsmanship is an abstract expression of one's esthetical senses. It parallels honor and rises above petty prejudices ..."

. On and on it goes—an excellent sermon on the subject, but thoroughly out of place, completely ignored, tolerated only in anticipation of getting one's money's worth later on, and forgotten by the time the opening jump is made

Principle of Identification

The age old advertising principle of identification is the solution If Joe Richey, or some other equally respected player stepped to the microphone just before the beginning of the game, and said, simply.

"Don't boo the decisions of the officials, please We will play our best, and we may not like some of the calls any better than you do, but we try to take it like good sports and would appreciate it if you would do the same Thanks"

The effect would be magical The crowd would be speechless They would not forget all evening what they heard And if they started to, Joe would be in front of them to remind them It's doubtful that there would be any "booing" that night.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS by Bibler

"Why don't you boys spread out a little more—there's no use for all of you to flunk this examination."

The World Today...

Scene Not Serene on GOP Front

by Ford Poulson

As far as John Q Public is concerned, the meeting of the Republican National Committee for the selection of presidential aspirants, has usually been a picture of serene, united action. The GOP ers have usually left the fighting within ranks to the Democrats.

Not so this year. For the past week San Francisco has been the scene of a pretty hectic affair, as the Republicans have tried to select a presidential candidate. Of course ,the actual choosing will take place in the convention next July, but these preliminary meetings, of the committee decide where the support of the party is going to go—and that, after all, determines the ultimate victor.

But this year finds the committee divided into several factions, each supporting a candidate of high caliber, in our opinion

First in number of supporters is Senator Taft of Ohio, who is backed by 31 of the committee members. Taft has probably had this presidential race in mind for the past four years, and he has marshalled a lot of strong support Among his top backers in General Douglas MacArthur, the "old soldier" who hasn't yet faded His oratorical skill and national stature could swing a lot of votes when the convention is held in July

Next in strength is five star General Dwight Eisenhower, for whom nine of the committeemen have taken a positive stand

The general has been criticized by his opponents for hiding behind what Harold Stassen termed the "khaki curtain," failing to assert his views on the various campaign issues We suggest that these opponents open their sleepy eyes.

His self-imposed censorship of his own statements, is, in our opinion, not an attempt to stay on the fence as long as possible, but indicates a high devotion to duty of a man who knows what his job is and how to do it

For those who would know the general's sentiments on cradle-to-grave security, taxation, America's responsibility toward world peace, the integrity of government officials, etc, we suggest that they refer to the many public addresses the general made while he was a civilian president of Columbia University In that period of more than two years the general's speeches are very explicit on the very issues which are looming today as the points about which the campaign will revolve

As we've stated before, we like Ike— and feel that when the time comes, he will tell the nation, in no uncertain terms, the planks he'll stand on

The other two aspirants, both fine men, are Gov Earl Warren of California, and Harold Stassen of Minnesota Warren has two backers in the committee, Stassen one.

The nation can expect to see some real fireworks in the various state primaries as these men and their supporters launch their vote-getting campaigns.

* * * * *

By now, everyone has heard the story of the "Flying Enterprise" and her gallant captain, Kurt Carlsen, who stayed with his ship—alone—through more than a week of fierce Atlantic storms, and finally left the vessel just a few hours before she went down It is a tale of modern heroism that has captured the admiration and plaudits of the whole world

But it didn't end there. A fitting sequel to his heroism on the sea took place after Capt. Carlsen was welcomed into port at Falmouth, England.

Waiting for him there were some of the vultures of capitalism wanting him to endorse cigarettes, shoe polish, mechanical ducks, milk bottle caps, toilet water, and a million other products and concoctions

But at last report he had withstood their onslaught, probably every bit as rugged as the North Atlantic storm, and had left them all cooling their heels in the outside foyer That's bravery, with a capital B!

Saving Seats Spoils Sportsmanship

Dear Editor

This letter is being written to protest against a practice that is undemocratic.

The comment was made today on the sportsship at the ball games Fine! The students should be commended on that. But there is a practice of saving seats at the studentbody assemblies that is unsportsmanlike

There are some students who go to the assemblies a little early and save three or four seats beside their own There are also some students who have to walk a long distance to get to the fieldhouse When these students arrive at the fieldhouse, lo and behold, they find that all of the seats are either taken or saved Then these students are forced to go into the bleachers to sit.

There are also students who rush down to the fieldhouse hoping to sit in the center section But when they get there, they find that the same situation exists for them.

Saving a seat for one person may be all right, but when it comes to saving for three or four people, it should be called to a stop

The policy of first come, first served might be a good answer to this problem, and it would certainly give the students who have to come a long way a chance to get a decent seat

The Problem

Honor Hopes Hindered Here

by Reed Longlois

The most serious weakness in the school today is the honor system

The administration is working on a large scale plan to increase the size of BYU, but if new students ,coming here find that the honor system is a farce, there are bound to be bad reports which could not only seriously cripple the expansion program, but could easily destroy the prestige and position that BYU currently enjoys

We all realize that the honor system does not work effectively and many people cheat and have cheated in classwork without being reported But the honor system should cover much more than just cheating. A general atmosphere of honor should prevail on the campus. Did you know that at least three members of the Honor Council have had coats stolen?

Non-Academic Occurrence

A student recently had the gas siphoned and the gas cap stolen from his car, the next day $25 was taken from his clothes while he was in the gym, and Sunday while he was attending church in the Joseph Smith building, his overshoes were stolen All this happened on this campus just two weeks ago! This may be an unusual case, but it indicates that the honor system fails in non-academic as well as academic ways.

The failure seems to be the result of a group of problems.

First, people here do not feel the honor system is important to them personally. As always, the pressure of the group dominates; and here the group is indifferent to the system. The majority of the students still place the grade school term of "tattling" at the head of their list of unforgivables. Or they feel that it is "none of my business," and consequently will not call attention to cheating while in classes.

Lax Attitude

Ask your self if you would report a cheater; an honest answer should convince most of us that a problem exists in this respect. With this attitude among so many students, the faculty cannot be expected to be too enthusiastic about placing trust in us.

Presumedly most people are fundamentally serious about their religion. Yet it appears that the most potentially serious contributory problem of them all is the fact that many students do not realize how very basic a part of their religion honor it. Plainly, it is a small minority who would steal; but when you add to this number those who, under pressure, have cheated in school work, the number becomes much more significant.

Serious Misunderstanding

As for the majority—the timid ones and the "anti tattling" faction. there is a misunderstanding of the religion here that is as serious as that of the dishonorable minority Is it not as important to do what is right as it is to avoid being dishonorable yourself?

There are some of the basic problems behind the honor system's failure.

Later articles will show how honor systems have been made to work in other schools, and how our system here could work.

In the meantime, students, faculty, start thinking about it—HONOR is worthy of your attention!

KBYU History Reflects Era Of Expansion

In 1946 a key move was made on the Brigham Young University campus, when the campus station KBYU was installed.

At that time it was housed in the basement of College Hall but was moved to upper campus three years ago when facilities became too limited to use. KBYU is the only college radio station in Utah at the present time broadcasting on its own frequency, 660 kilocycles. It is equipped with the best equipment and facilities.

Student Operated

The station is completely student-organized and operated, with faculty adviser Owen Rich the only one on hand to "crack the whip" over the 50 staff members. The station was originally organized with two reasons in mind: to give students interested in any phase of radio such as engineering, programming, presentation of material, etc., the actual experience necessary for training in these fields, and to present material of students' interest with the students' point of view on all campus matters.

Always on the lookout for new ways of doing things, KBYU this year made a number of changes. A short roundup of campus news is presented daily; all home basketball games are to be broadcast from a student view-point (and, better still, no commercials). The station is operated on strictly a non-profit basis with the only funds derived from students enrolled in various speech and radio classes.

New Plans Completed

At the present time plans are being completed for a new student request program. With a library of over 10,000 recordings, the program managers feel the program could fill almost all requests. In an effort to make the program a success, arrangements are being made with buildings and grounds for a telephone line to run from the dormitories to the station directly so students can call without forfeiting 10 cents each time.

Devotional exercises and assemblies have been broadcast for some time by KBYU. This was especially organized for Wymount residents who are unable to attend.

Only once during each quarter does the station go off the air. At this time they pause for three days of absolute silence (or is it reverence)—this is test week! All other times, like the proverbial mailman, the station is on the air with student news and views.

HE REALLY LOOKS AT THE STARS—Prof. John Eastmond uses the new telescope in the BYU observatory.

Science Building Observatory Opens Each Week for 'Gazers'

by Bruce Dyer

"If you could hie to Kolob in the twinkling of an eye—" might well be the theme song of those students who will visit the Science Building observatory when it is opened tomorrow night.

Housed in the dome atop the giant structure, the telescope will be available between 7-9 p.m. each Wednesday if weather conditions permit.

Because certain heavenly phenomena that are visible now can't be seen next quarter, students expecting to take the spring quarter class in astronomy are urged to avail themselves of the opportunity to use the telescope. Some bodies that can be seen now with the aid of the "far-seeing eye" are the planet Jupiter with its system of moons, the Great Spiral Nebula and Andromeda.

"Weather conditions will govern to a large extent whether the observatory will be open every week, and the objects that can be viewed," stated Prof. E. John Eastmond of the BYU physics department.

"It is probable that we won't know until the morning of any given Wednesday whether it will be clear enough to put the telescope into use that night," he said. To keep interested students posted on the nights that the observatory will be open, a card giving all necessary information, will be placed in the lobby of the Science building each Wednesday morning.

Professor Eastmond explained that the impetus for opening the observatory was provided by a speech delivered by President J. Reuben Clark, Jr. of the First Presidency, Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. In a devotional message a few weeks ago, President Clark commented at great length concerning the mysteries of the Universe and what man knows about them.

The telescope, of the refracting type, is six inches in diameter and magnifies objects up to 288 times.

New Traffic Regulations Announced by Council

Students driving cars should note the new regulations released recently by the Dean's Council.

1. All student, faculty, and employee-owned automobiles or motorized equipment operating on the Brigham Young University campus must be registered with the university and must display a sticker as evidence of such registration, and for identification purposes. The stickers may be obtained at the buildings and grounds office at any time from 9 to 5 except during the noon hour. They are free.

2. The university reserves the right to deny any person permission to operate a motorized vehicle, and declares that the grounds are private property. The university further reserves the right to inspect any unidentified vehicle parked on the university property in order to establish or learn the identity of the owner, or to move any vehicle which is in a precarious position.

Fines

The following cash fines and penalties will be in force:

1. For failure to register a vehicle and display sticker, $1.00.

2. For driving or parking in a restricted area during restricted hours (7 a.m. to 5 p.m., school days) or for other parking violations, $1.00.

3. For parking in front of any gate, chain, barricade, or other traffic marker such as to prevent the free use of the roadway in an emergency by police, fire department, ambulance or service vehicles, $2.00.

4. For obstructing any roadway or cross-walk, $2.00.

5. For reckless driving or careless operation which might endanger the safety of pedestrians or others, $2.00.

6. For removing, altering, defacing or otherwise molesting any traffic sign or marker or for having any such sign or marker in possession, or for driving along any roadway barricaded or closed, $2.00.

7. For tampering with any traffic ticket or for interfering in any way with a traffic officer or other employee of the university while such a person is on traffic duty, $2.00.

8. For failure to stop at a stop sign, $2.00.

9. For operating a motor vehicle in excess of 15 miles per hour maximum limit, $2.00.

10. For riding a bicycle, motorbike or scooter at any hour on the Second East hillside entrance road when such road is officially closed, $2.00.

11. For driving an automobile or truck at any hour on the Second East hillside road when such road is officially closed, $5.00.

Payments of fines shall be made at the Treasurer's office. The amount of the cash fine automatically doubles at 5 p.m. of the third school day following the offense. Any unpaid violations will result in withholding of credits and denial of readmission to the university. Any adjustments for unjust fines can be made by appealing to a committee consisting of the chairman of the attendance and scholarship committee, the studentbody president, and a member of the faculty. Present faculty member is Dr. Richard Poll.

HOW MORAL CAN A VICTORY GET? OR Don't Put All Your Goose Eggs in One Basket

A college basketball team once had plenty of nothing. It was so bad that even the coach hadn't gone to a game all season. Couldn't stand to watch his job collapse. So the team careened through its schedule and hit the road for the big game, the season's windup. Due to lose by over forty-five points, the experts said.

But somebody back on campus had a brainstorm and started a notion. Telegrams, to be exact. Just before game time, the team got more telegrams than you could shake a referee at. Group telegrams from fraternities and sororities, personal telegrams from Prexy and the Dean of Women—hundreds of telegrams, all saying "We're behind you, team." And by golly, the boys pulled themselves together and went out and lost by only twenty-eight points, instead of forty-five.

The moral is plain. The more you encourage guys, the better they work or play. Giving anyone a hand by telegrams does wonders for gratitude and cooperation—whether it's cash from home you want or a date or just to send a thoughtful message to someone on any special occasion. J. Paul Sheedy* Switched to Wildroot Cream-Oil Because He Flunked The Finger-Nail Test

POOR PAUL was having a fowl time. Even his beat gal didn't give a hoot for him. "Wise she hate me so?" he asked his roommate. "Simple, you stuffy old bird—because your hair's always ruffled up! Better try Wildroot Cream-Oil hair tonic. It's non-alcoholic. Contains soothing Lanolin. And does tree things: Relieves annoying dryness. Removes loose, ugly dandruff. Grooms hair neatly and naturally all day long. (Even limb-ers up your scalp. And helps you pass the Finger-Nail Nest-er, Test!)" Paul got Wildroot Cream-Oil and now he's a 'owling success. So why don't you take a taxi-dermist to any drug or toilet goods counter to get a bottle or tube of Wildroot Cream-Oil. It's your hair's best friend! And ask for it at your barber shop. Then there's no talon how the chicks'll go for you.

Colorful Cougars Conquer Cold Colags

Cats Win Sixth Straight Home Tilt; Second Half Rally Downs Rams 68-47

by Don LeBaron

The Brigham Young University Cougars showed nearly 7000 hoop fans that they are again going to make a strong bid for the Conference title by subduing the Colorado A&M Rams 68 47 in the Saturday tussle With this victory the Cats maintained their foothold on the top spot with a record of three wins and no losses

With their fast break working very effectively, the Cats quickly built up a 6 2 lead on two tallies by Richey and one by Karren Although the Rams fought hard they were unable to catch up to the rampaging Cougars despite great shooting by Colag stalwart Bob Betz.

The Rams stayed within reaching distance to the Pumas until the waning moments of the first half when Mateljan and Richey tallied a bucket apiece, to give the Cats a 30-23 halftime lead

The Rams threatened again as Dennis Steuhm, rangy pivot man, hooked in two quick counters It appeared that Bill Strannigan's boys might make it as hot for the Cougars as they did for the Utah Redskins, the previous night.

This was not the case, however, and with Richey, Jarman and Romney sparking the Cats, they surged out in front 55 36 with seven minutes remaining on the clock.

In the last few minutes of the game, Coach Watts cleared his bench, with every man getting in the contest for some action

This game proved that one of the weak spots of the Cougar squad is definitely not the center position. Boyd Jarman played a standout game as did his replacement, freshman Nick Mateljan

Joe Richey, who came up with 18 points, was high point man for the evening, and gave a good account of himself on other departments Betz was high man for the Rams with 15 counters

BYU held a large edge over the Rams in the rebounding column, chalking up 45 as campared to 34 for the Colorado lads Richey and Jarman also turned in stellar performances in this bracket

Although the Cougars did not get as many shots at the hoop as did their opponents, they scored on a much higher percentage of the attempts The Cats garnered 20 field goals for a commendable 40 per cent mark while the Rams hit on only 27 per cent of their attempts.

Mural Action Cuts Unbeaten Fives

No more than a dozen teams came through the first week of intramural basketball undefeated. Upsets, forfeits, and "just plain" basketball drew these select dozen out of the mad scramble of 46 teams originally entered in the five leagues.

In the Social League the Brigadiers showed up as the powerhouse with impressive victories over Val Hyric 64 to 27 and the Tausigs 55 to 39. Pushing the Brigs for the league lead are the Brickers and Vikings with two wins each.

The Maintenance Engineers are the marked quintet in the Tuesday-Thursday League with wins over the powerful Torpedoes 43 to 34 and the Bookstore 46 to 17. The Panthers and Sheepherders, each with a bye for the first round play, are also in the two win, no defeat column.

Low scores is the keynote in the Friday-Saturday League with the Wyoming club raking up all the respect in first week play. Its 31 to 28 squeek past Porter House was a big stride towards the league flag. The Idaho club, along with Wyoming, has no blemishes on its two win record.

Incomplete records in the Monday-Wednesday A and B Leagues have made the first week's standings rather uncertain. The Dark Horse squad has, however, shown signs of power in the A League with two verdicts and no defeats.

The B League is even more incomplete but the Toilenders, Skyline Five, and Haws Avenue Boys emerged victorious in their lone encounter.

Gary Johnson for the Bookstore five emerged as bigh man in a single game with 24 points. MacIntosh, Tausigs, with 23 and 14 points in two games, leads all the leagues in total points. Richards for Brigadlers is close behind with 21 and 14.

Utes Take Over Second Place In Skyline Race

Brigham Young University continued in its winning ways last week to stay in the Skyline Conference basketball loop lead, ahead of Utah and Wyoming. The Cougars showed plenty of sparkle in thumping Colorado A&M Rams in the Provo fieldhouse Saturday night.

The Utes, dumped by Denver a week ago, found themselves back in the win column on both Friday and Saturday. They tangled with the Rams on Friday and with the Utah State 'upset boys' the following evening. Utah at present has played six conference games and has emerged victorious in all but one.

Playing one of their poorest games of the season, the Redskins found themselves in plenty of hot water when the Rams began to pour on the steam and surged to within a few points of the high riding Redmen on several occasions. Had it not been for the efforts of Kent Bates, Utah would probably have been crying over a second defeat. Bates hit for 22 points.

The story was somewhat reversed on Saturday when the Utags hit the Ute capitol. Inspired by their upset win over Wyoming, the Farmers were out to make it two in a row, but found the opposition a bit rough.

In other Skyline competition, the Wyoming Cowboys walked off with a 71-51 win over the Montana Grizzlies in a contest in Missoula. The Cowboys are currently in third place in the loop race, having won three and lost one. Their lone loss came at the hands of the Utah State Farmers in the biggest upset of the past week. The 'Pokes were classed as one of the better teams in the loop, before the season began, and probably still are.

The other game in the circuit pitted the Pioneers and the Lobos in battle. Denver came off the floor with another win, making their record two and two for the conference record.

This week lists a total of ten tilts for Skyline teams. The Cougars play Denver, New Mexico, Utah State, and Utah in their next four encounters on the hardwoods.

Globetrotters Thrill 7000 In Fieldhouse

Last Wednesday night before a crowd of some 7000 in the Brigham Young University fieldhouse, the Harlem Globetrotters put on one of the greatest shows ever seen in the state of Utah as they completely outclassed the Boston Whirlwinds in a game that finally wound up 63-50 for the Trotters.

Reece "Goose" Tatum paced the Trotter attack with his famous over-the-head shot that had the more rabid hoop fans in complete wonderment. With "Goose" in the post, Abe Sapperstien's boys were remarkable in their ability to shake men loose under the basket.

The Trotters confined their first quarter to more serious play that resulted in a 20-10 lead at the end of the first quarter. They were hitting well and probably could have scored 100 points if they had wanted.

Marques Haynes put on a tremendous show of dribbling as his teammates lounged around the floor in various places. Haynes dribbled through the entire Boston team and assumed many positions while doing it. He was a star with Langston University of Oklahoma.

Storm Mars Attendance At JV Forensic Tourney

by Bob Holman

Bad weather reduced the number of participants in the Junior Varsity Invitational Forensic Meet held at Brigham Young University last Saturday, but it didn't dampen the spirit of competition at the event

Only 70 of the scheduled 114 participants were able to attend Scheduled participants from Snow and Branch Agricultural colleges never did get through the snow blocked southern roads, while only part of Carbon College's entries arrived Other colleges who participated in the event were Weber, Utah State, University of Utah, and BYU

Dr. LaVar Bateman, director of the meet, estimated that there were about 90 people present, including participants, coaches, judges and other interested people.

Debate was the main event in the meet, with 23 two-man teams entering Three teams emerged undefeated, and six teams had only one defeat Undefeated teams were· Franklyn Johnson and Bob Bennett, Allan Mortonsen and Herman Spilker, both from Utah, and Reed Walquist and Blain Gross, Weber

Of 12 entries in impromptu speaking, Kirk Hart BYU, and Franklyn Johnson, USAC, received superior ratings Six excellent ratings were given

Woodruff Releases Recommendation Letter Procedure

Students wishing recommendations from faculty members to other schools should furnish a stamped, self-addressed envelope with instructions where to send it, according to Dr Asahel D Woodruff, dean of the Brigham Young University graduate school

In citing some faculty views, Dr. Woodruff said that each faculty member should be told the purpose of the application Specific questions which the student wishes treated should be discussed with him Students should provide a record of the work they have had, and the date when it was taken, in order to conserve time

When a confidential recommendation is requested, the person making it will give a fair and unbiased appraisal of his record at BYU, and should not be requested nor expected to tell things about the student which he cannot conscientiously do, Dr Woodruff said.

Hours of Enjoyment Offered By Record Library Facilities

With an attractive new home, new director, and many new facilities, the phonograph record library has become a valuable asset to all Brigham Young University students

Until fall quarter, this record library was housed in the Education building on lower campus, and was used by music students for study. The new location in room 135 of the library is available to all students

Jacob Bos, a well trained musician with years of experience in all branches of music is on hand to help the students hear the music they request, and to give interested students information about the music to which they listen

Mr. Bos, who recently came to the United States from Holland, is the newest member of the BYU faculty

Jazz and Classics

Thirty shelves of records from Bach to Gershwin—yes, and even a few jazz—will satisfy a wide variety of musical tastes For those students who read music, scores of various kinds are available to read as they hear it performed

The majority of the records in the library are the standard type, however, a few of the long playing variety are available More are expected in future weeks

The records may be taken out of the library, but there are adequate turn tables and earphones for eight to twelve persons to be listening at one time The record library will soon boast two completely new tables with a capacity for thirty two people plus convenient space for albums school books, and scores of listeners

Catalogs Aid Selection

An excellent catalog with separate divisions for composers, instrumentals, and various types, such as operas, symphonies, concertos, etc, gives valuable aid to the students in finding the records they desire

A new system whereby a student wishing to use an album must sign a check out slip giving his name, the date, composer, title, and album name of his selection, is being inaugurated in the record library According to Mr Bos, this system will help avoid loss and damage of the record collection

Library Hours

The record library has the same hours as the general library with the exception of Tuesday evenings On these evenings there will be a round table discussion and music appreciation period for students especially interested in music Mr Bos is hopeful that a modern radio-phonograph console will soon be available for the Tuesday evening meetings

So whether you want concentrated musical study, or a relaxing period of musical enjoyment, make good use of the rich collection of phonograph records made available through this efficient record library
